I love this concept. My hair stylist in South FL left a salon and got her own suite years ago, it just makes sense. As a client, I love the chill vibe. They're focused on me, no distractions.

A few weeks ago, I was invited by My Salon and Beyond the Veil Skincare for a facial.

When you're in the lobby, you buzz in the suite to let them know you've arrived. There's a camera, so they can see you. I love this feature.

Taryk Popovich, owner of Beyond the Veil Skincare met me with enthusiasm. She examined my face and asked questions so she could use the proper products for my needs.

Her suite is very clean. The table was heated, which made me feel nice and cozy.

Right away she noticed my skin was dehydrated. I was impressed with her because I've had other estheticians look past that. There's a difference between dry and dehydrated, by the way. My air conditioner died, so I ended up sweating all of the water I consumed, which made my skin dehydrated.

The Éminence Facial was quite impressive. Taryk used different products on me since my skin is complex. I had a bit of dehydration going on, but I wanted exfoliation and brightening. What's interesting is how gentle the line is yet it's so effective.

She cleansed, extracted, toned, massaged and the peel was the icing on the cake.

I feel like I would be a lifelong client for the Hungarian facial massage alone. When done correctly, Éminence Facials are known for the massage, which helps drain lymph nodes. I've wrote about that on my blog before, how drainage not only removes toxins but plumps your face (in a good way!). It somehow reduces bloating but plumps your skin in the right places, which makes you glow and look younger. Getting this done monthly would do wonders for your skin and overall health.

My skin felt so clean and gorgeous. I can't wait for my next facial with Taryk!

She also carries the Éminence Organic Skin Care line. So many different options!
