

Kona Ice Truck Rolls into Hunter's Creek with Shaved Ice for your Aching Sinuses

By Jessica Bryce Young | March 15, 2019

Food truck franchise Kona Ice has a new member of the fleet: Gene and Denise Hays are wheeling a Kona Ice tiki truck into Hunter's Creek.

It's pretty much perfect timing for a new cold-treat truck in Orlando, as the temperatures are already climbing to summer levels, plus we're pretty sure shaved ice is a good remedy for pollen-saturated sinuses.

Kona Ice trucks feature a "Flavorwave," which is basically like a 7-Eleven soda dispenser of flavored syrups, so you can mix your own flavor; or, you can just let them serve you one of the 500 different flavors they've come up with, including Snickerdoodle, PSL, pickle, lavender lemonade and bubblegum.

The Hayses plan to donate a portion of proceeds to various educational philanthropies. Kona Ice says their franchisees have donated more than $60 million to community-based organizations nationwide since June 2007.
